

Hand drawn balls

Men need to take care of their balls.

However, there is a taboo and an ignorance about how these balls should look and behave. It creates an uncertainty when you check once in a while. When you are always in doubt, you are never really in doubt, thus making it hard to react to things, before they start hurting.

Men, like the female gender, need to get to know themselves.

This can not be done with photographs as it is not appropriate. We thought that if you draw your balls, you will most likely also get to know them, during the process.

Learning is increased through hand motions, like writing notes or drawing.

Introducing www.theballstorage.com the worlds first database of drawn balls for men who needs to check their balls and are in need a reference point, to encourage and see how balls are different

It is crucial to know your own ball size and surface, since if these happen to change, they can be early symptoms of testicular cancer.

Hopefully, this database can help, and encourage to get more to know your own balls.
